PROSPERITY ADVANCING.

The Opinion of a Prominent Rail Road Man of the South.

(From the Atlanta Constitution.)

Mr. Samuel M. Inman, just returned from an extended trip to the West and South, said yesterday:

"I believe the Government will soon have money enough to pay its running expenses, as the revenue seems to be improving from month to month, and the war expands. The sale of bonds under the Cleveland Administration was for the purpose largely of securing money to pay the Government's expenses, although the nominal reason was to maintain the gold reserve. This brought a distressing condition of affairs. This has changed, and I do not believe we will see another bond issue for some time."

"During the past few disastrous years, although the visible trade balance with the balance of the world was in our favor, it was neutralized by the enormous expenditures of the Government. The coming home on account of the lack of confidence in our Government policy. In the end this will be blessing in disguise. By reason of our immense debt of the debt we owed five years ago in Europe, although it created great distress at the time, because the real balance was largely against us at the end of every year. By reason of our immense debt balance, owing to what the world has had to pay us for wheat and other products during the past year, we have a very large credit in our favor now, and having, as I think, brought back the most of our securities that were for sale on the outside and our own people own it, from now on the trade balance will be a real one and we will get to be more and more creditors of the world instead of its debtors."

"From now on I think we will sell largely more securities to the outside world than we will have to buy from them. This is being shown already in the large accumulations of money in the money market in America, while money is dear elsewhere. I do not believe we are going to have any panics or great convulsions in the money market for a long time, and I think that the policy of the Government will be to keep the money market steady. It has been several years. I find evidence of great improvement in the West and in portions of the East. There are some warred labor conditions in the East, but they amount to but little in comparison to the general business interests of that section. Even in the South, although cotton is at a very low price, I believe the country is in better shape than when we had the low price of three years ago. There have been decided advances in the other staple products of the South. The Northern belt of the Southern States received a better price for the next crop and on account of its coming into market very early compared with Western wheat, I believe we will receive good prices this year."

"I have just returned from a trip to Texas. I find the sugar interests of Louisiana are prospering and the sugar planters have made money this year. There has been a very large advance in cotton and this is one of the leading interests of the Southwest. Lumbermen tell me they have had a marked advance in their product, and there is an active demand. I am not familiar with rice and tobacco, but I assume these staples have given good results this year."

They are guaranteed to cure or price refunded. For sale at Short & Haynes' drug store, only 50 cents per bottle.

Hot Milk For The Skin.

Hot milk for the complexion has proved to be of the greatest benefit, and many women say they owe an improvement of their complexion to the constant use of hot milk applied every morning and night to their faces. A woman prominent in the literary world, whose complexion is equal to a young girl's, assured us that she had had many previous attempts to keep her skin in good condition, none was so efficacious as hot milk. "When I am thoroughly fatigued," she said, "from the rush of the life I lead, I get a bottle of milk and put it in my bath tub, adding sufficient hot water to cover the body. I lie in this mixture for ten minutes, and when I feel thoroughly refreshed and with new life in the skin, and previous to the bath had a dead look."—Ex.

Tubercular at Bowling Green.

Laura Curry H. told.

Business men of Bowling Green are trying to build a tubercular house, a building capacity of 3,000 to be used for large gatherings, and have already subscribed $1,000. Rev. Dwight L. Moody will hold a meeting there in the spring to try to raise the balance of the money.

On the morning of Feb. 20, 1895, I was seized with rheumatism and lay in bed until May 15, when I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first application of it relieved me almost entirely from the pain and the second afforded complete relief. In a short time I was able to be up and about again. I am now as well as usual.

Where The Fat Comes From.

(Cincinnati Inquirer)

Chemically considered, fats of all kinds starch, coal and vegetable fiber, are only so many different forms of carbon. The diamond is crystallized carbon. It has been supposed by old-time scientists that the different forms were mostly not interchangeable. But modern science has succeeded in transforming one form of carbon into others. That this can be done by chemical skill is not, however, given most chemists greater faith in the ability of nature to do this by her own means and without the aid of man. There has for example been a long-standing doubt among chemists whether the fat of animals, including the butter, is taken from the milk of cows, could possibly be the products of the various carbohydrates taken by such animals as food. From such vegetable matter can be found in such foods as linseed and cottonseed meal, might see how the process of digestion might change these into animal fat, or even into cream-and-butter fats that are found in milk. There is a small portion of vegetable fat or oil in corn or other grains. So far the effect of feeding corn to fatten might be explained, but beyond that science has not been able to explain the matter. At last the knowledge has been obtained that the conclusions arrived at by the hard practical common sense of farmers were correct. The New York State Experiment Station at Geneva has been conducting a series of experiments in fattening cattle on corn meal, from which all the oils that exist as oil in this grain were removed. Every particle of food given was weighed, as well as the excretions, which were analyzed to show their chemical character. It was found that the proteid compounds were very largely excreted from the system, though there was some gain in flesh and bone. It is therefore concluded that the gain was in the increased amount of fat on all parts of the body. This was thus conclusively shown to be the product of the starch carbohydrates that were eaten by the cows, and by them changed into other forms of animal fat, including butter. All of this was generally guessed at by the farmers. But it is interesting to know that the question has been investigated by scientific methods, and that the theories on this subject which the majority of farmers have always held have been proved to be founded on scientific fact.

I desire to state to the merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as one of the most valuable and efficient preparations of the market. It broke an exceedingly dangerous cold in me in 24 hours, and I am indebted to it for my recovery. I am sure that I will never be without it, and you should feel proud of the highest esteem in which your remedies are held by people in general. It is the only remedy I have ever found. Success to it.—D. R. Downey, Editor Democrat, Albion, Ind. For sale by A. R. Fisher, Cloverport; R. A. Shellman, Stephensport.

90 CASES OF SMALL-POX.

Under Treatment at Middleshorough—Government Aid May Be Invoked.

(Louisville Times.)

Middleshorough, Ky., March 10.—The threat of the State Board of Health to withdraw support and outcast the county has created the wildest excitement. Mayor Fitzpatrick, however, asserts the people that they will be protected. If the board fail the people will be called upon. There are now ninety cases of small-pox and fifteen suspects in the pest-house. Strict quarantine prevails. Guards are posted around the pest-house. No one is permitted to leave the town. To-day there will be only one train. John Moore, assistant postmaster, who furnishes the mails, is very ill from the one of burnt sulphur. Small-pox has broken out at Four Miles and Marlborough, Ky., and Sprowle, Tenn.

Given Up By Four Doctors.

Beaver Dam, O., Aug. 27, 1895. My daughter, after being treated by four doctors, and being given up for lost, a neighbor recommended Foley's Kidney cure. Today she is able to walk several miles without fatigue. I feel we would have lost her if it was not for your medicine. Respectfully, Mrs. S. M. Bailey.

The Modern Pulpit.

(From Life.)

The Rev. Mr. Spoto—My dear brother, don't you think you ought to attend my church more regularly?

Von Blumer—My dear sir, you forget that we are not of the same political faith.

After years of untold suffering from piles, B. W. Farrell, of Kaitumaite, Pa., was cured by using a single box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. His skin disease such as eczema, rash, pimples, and obstinate sores are readily cured by this famous remedy.—Short & Haynes.

New Poultry Association.

The poultry men of Hardin county have organized an association with membership of thirty-seven. The breeding of fancy poultry is a profitable industry in that section.

Don't skimp either by your coughing, and keep your life by neglecting a cold. One Minute Cough Cure cures cough, cold, croup, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.—Short & Haynes.

No Gripping or Pains.

Arrowmills, Ill., Jan. 21, 1897. Dear Sirs—I have been bothered for 15 years with constipation and I have tried many preparations during that time. I commenced using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the fall of 1895 and immediately it gave me the best remedy I ever found for my trouble. No gripping or pains after taking. Wm. Hunt.

Chas. C. Martin, druggist.

Then the Girls Fled.

(From the Washington Times.)

It is amusing to people familiar with the Capitol to watch strangers, examine it, and nowhere are these strangers so numerous as when they are in Statuary Hall, where there are a dozen or more "echo" stones, each of which creates a different sort of echo owing to the peculiarities of the acoustics created by the form of the ceiling. Men and women, old and young, frequently afford the most amusing spectacles when the solemn guide exhibits the wonders of these "echo" stones. There are also two pillars on one either side of the room which are called the telephone columns, and a person speaking in a very low tone near one may be distinctly heard by any one standing near the opposite pillar, especially a member's secretary was leaning against the pillar on the south side of the hall when he heard a voice say:

"Oh, dear, what shall I do? My skirt is falling off and I haven't got a pin."

The young fellow glanced around, saw no one near him, but observed two young women near the telephone pillar opposite. Instantly grasping the situation, he hurriedly said in a low voice:

"See it on or use a liathip."

He heard a slight start, saw two young women look at each other in a startled fashion, and observing that no one was near, the one in distress exclaimed:

"Did you ever?"

"No," I never," replied the Secretary as gruffly as before; "I use buttons."

This was too much for the young women and they precipitately fled.

For a perfect complexion and a clear, healthy skin, use Camo Bathing Soap. Sold everywhere.
